BIO

Elizabeth Chamberlain is a Canadian LGBTQ+ actress and singer-songwriter who has pronounced herself in the film and television industries. Elizabeth received her Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Acting from the University of Alberta in 2021 and had also received a diploma of Theatre Arts in 2018 from Grant MacEwan University.

Elizabeth is most known for her roles of Alexandra 'Zee' Bradbury in the Hollywood Sci-Fi film series "Space Command" directed by Marc and Elaine Zicree, the gruesome and feminine lead Mildred Moyer in Grottesque (Higher Universe Pictures), and the sweet and innocent Mary in Hot Box (High Universe Pictures). In addition to acting for the camera, Elizabeth also enjoys songwriting and has composed and performed the theme song for the English film "The Code" directed by multi-award winning director Patrick Ryder.

When she is not acting for the camera, Elizabeth also enjoys the theatre and especially enjoys teaching musical theatre to youth. She believes that inspiring our youth with art creates a more vibrant future for everyone.

Elizabeth is known for her fiery passion about acting and is willing to pursue it wherever it may take her.
